Bronx Museum of the Arts

Like the Modern, the Bronx Museum is highlighting gifts in a recent-acquisitions show. This one is devoted to six young Cuban artists, all of whom take an oblique, unanswering approach to the kind of political subjects that fired up artists of an earlier generation, many of whom left Cuba.

Work by Tania Bruguera and Carlos Estévez look particularly good in this exhibition, organized by the museum's senior curator, Marysol Nieves.
